```java
(p1-x)  import java.util.Scanner;
        class Player() {
            String id;
            String name;
            int no-of-matches-played;
            int[] scores;
            float sum=0f;
            float avg=0f;
            Scanner s = new Scanner(System.in);
            Player(String eid, String ename, int enmp,
            int[] escores)
            {
                    id= eid;
                    name= ename;
                    no-of-matches-played = enmp;
                    scores = escores;
            }
            public void display-details()
            {
                    System.out.println("Player name:"+name);
            public float compute-average()
            {
                    sum=0f;
                    for (int i=0; i<no-of-matches-played; i++)
                    {
                            sum = sum + scores[i];
                    }
                    avg = sum/no-of-matches-played;
                    return avg;
            }
            public void display-details()
            {
                    System.out.println("Player name:"+name);
                    System.out.println("Player id:"+id);
                    System.out.println("The number of matches
                    played by the player:"+no-of-matches-
```

```
played);
System.out.println ("Match      Score");
for (int i=0; i <no-of -matches -played; i++)
    {
        System.out.println ((i+1)+ "       " + scores[i]);
    }
System.out.println (" The average score :"+ compute average());
    }
}

public class Ipl-2() {
    public static void main(String asgs[])
    {
        int[] score1 = {10,20,30,40,50};
        int[] score2 = {60,70,80,90,100};
        Player p1 =new Player("ja", "jahnavi", 5, score1);
        System.out.println("The  average score of
        the  player  "+p1.name+":" +p1.compute-
        average();
        Player p2 =new Player ("va", "Vaishnavi", 5, score2); System.out.println ("The average score of
        the  player "+ p2. name + ":" + p2.
        compute-average();
        if  (p1.compute- avesage >p2.compute average) {      p1. display - details ();
        }

        else {
            p2.display - details();
        }
    }
}
```